FINE EXHIBITS AT BIG POULTRY SHOW

Third Annual Exhibition
Opens Auspiciously at Lincoln Hall, Today.

With a splendid collection of prize exhibits the third annual exhibit of the Bridgeport Poultry, Pigeon and Pet Stock association opened at Lincoln hall, Cannon street, this morning at 10 o'clock.

The attendance included many poultry fanciers from other cities, and the interest on the opening day was so marked that a record success was predicted for the enterprise. Thirty silver cups and 250 special prizes are offered.

He Remained One.

"It is true," said a woman lecturer, "that some girls, marrying men to reform them, succeed. Some girls, too, fail."

"The hostess at a tea once said to a beautiful, sad-eyed woman: 'Are you fond of sports, Mrs. Blank?'"

"Mrs. Blank smiled. Her sad eyes twinkled a moment. Then she sighed and answered: 'Well, I suppose I ought to be. I married one.'"

Egypt and China.

In Egypt we dig and delve and year by year recover the treasures she holds. In China there is nothing to recover, nothing to dig for. All her past is huddled on the surface. Her music and her musical instruments of the past are here today the same as they ever were. There are no stages of development and no steps of ascent.

Preventing a Waste.

"Why is Mrs. Jones standing bareheaded in the cold?"

"Oh, she's got a half bottle of cold cure left from last year, and she wants to use it up to get the bottle out of the way,"—Lippincott's.

"Touch Not the Queen."

Under this title a Paris journal professes to give an account of the tragic death of the queen of Siam, who was as greatly loved as her consort. Some years ago her majesty was boating with ladies of the court in a lake in the gardens of the palace at Bangkok. The boat overturned, and the queen could not swim. She was surrounded by numerous personages who could have saved her life, but no one has the right to extend the hand upon the queen. The king alone could have held her up and prevented her from sinking, and he was nowhere at hand. Respectfully the court allowed the queen to drown.

Chippendale's Own.

"Is it genuine Chippendale?"

"Absolutely, sir."

"But this looks like a crack right across!"

"Done by Chippendale himself, sir, in a fit of rage when he heard the union had called the men out."—London Punch.

The Other Was Important.

"Two great desires of my life have been gratified. One was to go up in an airship."

"And the other?"

"To get safely back to earth."—Exchange.

The Paste Used by Minstrel Performers When "Blacking Up."

The popular impression as to the application of burnt cork by minstrel performers and actors in general is that it is rubbed on the face and hands of the player from a cork whose end is charred in a convenient gas jet. This impression is, however, incorrect. The burnt cork used by minstrels and others is the product of the theatrical "paint factories," just as is any other cosmetic or pigment employed by the profession.

One house makes it in the following manner: The corks are placed in three tin vessels, resembling wash boilers, with holes punched in their sides and bottom. Alcohol is sprinkled over the corks, and they are "fired." When the corks have been properly charred they are placed in muslin sacks, which are kneaded in barrels of water. This operation forces the powdered charcoal through the sacks into the water.

When all the charred corks have been worked through the sacks into the water in this way the water is drained through a close canvas sack, and what remains in that sack is ready for the performers. The stuff is put up in cans, from which, when the minstrel is ready to "black up," he takes a little of the black paste in his hands and applies it to his face, neck and sometimes his hands.—New York Herald.

A CURIOUS BIRD.

The Crested Hoatzin When Hatched Has Four Legs.

The crested hoatzin of British Guiana is the only survivor of a certain race of birds most of which are now known only as fossils. The hoatzin inhabits the most secluded forests of South America, and its survival beyond its congeners is doubtless owing to its retiring habits and to the fact that it feeds on wild arrow leaves, which give its flesh a most offensive flavor, rendering it unfit for food.

The chief peculiarity of the hoatzin consists in the fact that when it is hatched it possesses four well developed legs. The young birds leave the nest and climb about like monkeys over the adjoining limbs and look more like tree toads than birds.

The modification of the fore limbs begins at once after hatching, when the claws of the digits fall off and the whole clawlike hand begins to fatten and become wing shaped. Feathers soon appear, and before full growth is reached not a vestige remains of the original character.

The adult bird not only have no claws upon their wings, but their thumbs even are so poorly developed that one would hardly suspect that in the nestlings we have the nearest approach to a quadruped found among existing birds.—London Tit-Bits.

Tung Po and Teamaking.

There is but one way of making tea, for—

Unless the water boiling be poured on water spoils the tea.

The teapot itself should be heated very hot before the tea is placed in it and the boiling water poured on. It should be scalding hot water or the leaves will float to the top.

No less authority than Tung Po, the Chinese poet, is quoted for a recipe for teamaking. He says: "Whenever tea is to be infused take water from a running stream and boil it over a lively fire. It is an old custom to use running water, boiled over a lively fire. That from springs in the hills is said to be best and river water the next, while well water is the worst. A lively fire is a clear, bright charcoal fire. When making an infusion do not boil the water too hastily. At first it begins to sparkle like crabs' eyes, then somewhat like fish's eyes, and lastly it boils up like pearls innumerable springing and waving about. This is the way to boil water."

Quite Poetic.

"Tell me, Harry," said May Brightley's admirer to her young brother, "who is this other fellow that's been calling on your sister?"

"I don't know his name," replied Harry. "Just call him 'April show-ers.'"

"What for?"

"Because he brings May flowers."

Without the spiritual world the material world is a disheartening enigma.—Joubert.

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM WAS VERY BRIEF FOR THIS PAIR

Eloping Young People Separated by Annulment Decree of Superior Court Today.

An elopement which had its start in White Plains, N. Y., on Sept. 22, 1910, between two young people, almost children, who did not know their own minds and who soon regretted the step, had its ending today in the civil superior court, when Judge William H. Williams annulled the marriage of pretty Anna M. Brooks of Stamford and William A. Brooks of New Haven. The annulment proceedings were brought by the girl's wife, and not contested by the husband.

At the time of the marriage, Brooks was a chauffeur employed in Torrington. He was 19 years of age, she 17. They had known each other for two years. When married the young man said he was 21 and the girl gave her age as 19. Very soon after the ceremony, the girl-wife found that her husband was ill. He requested that she return to her parents and that when he felt better he would return to her. She wanted to remain with him. He threatened to join the navy unless she would go to her parents. She did and has never seen him since. The girl was allowed to assume her maiden name, Anna M. Wasserman.

TEMPLE IRON CO. PUT OUT OF BUSINESS

(Special from United Press.)

Philadelphia, Dec. 20.—Is a sweeping decree handed down by Judges Gray, Buffington and Lanning, in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, this afternoon, the Temple Iron Company is practically forced out of business.

The court decreed that the railroad and other companies, interested in the Temple Iron Company, shall not vote its stock and they are restrained from participating in the management of the Temple Iron Company.

By forcing the disruption of the Temple Iron Company, the government will destroy the medium through which the railroads operating in the anthracite region combined to control the output of the field.

J. F. Rogers, attorney for the government, immediately took an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States. In the opinion of the department of justice, the Temple Iron Company was an illegal combination but refused to find that the company had conspired to control the output of the field.

NEW BRITISH PARLIAMENT NOW COMPLETE

Conservatives, 272; Liberals, 272; Laborites, 12; Nationalists, 74; O'Brienites, 10.

The only change in the complexion of the House of Commons, since last January, is that the Liberals lost three and the Conservatives one to the Laborites and Nationalists. As the latter are qualifiedly allied with the Coalition there is a net gain to it of two votes. Two of the O'Brienites are expected to ally themselves with the Redmond Nationalists thus strengthening Redmond's position.

MEMORIAL TO ABRAHAM LINCOLN

(Special from United Press.)

Washington, Dec. 20.—A bill providing a committee to arrange plans for a suitable memorial to Abraham Lincoln, was today favorably reported by Senator Root (Rep., New York), from the Senate committee on the Library.

Senator Culham, author of the bill, gave notice that he will call it up for action immediately after the holidays recess.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 20.—In order to relieve the tense situation that has arisen at Cincinnati as a result of offers of both Mrs. Frederick Alms and Mrs. C. P. Taft to erect $100,000 memorials to Lincoln, Cleveland today offered to take one of the proposed monuments off Cincinnati's hands.

Following the announcement from Cincinnati that the city would accept her $100,000 gift rather than permit two memorials to be erected there to the martyred hero, Public Service Director Alms wrote Mrs. Alms, saying that her memorial be erected in Cleveland instead. C. P. Taft and announced that the plans for the memorial regardless of anything Mrs. Alms may do.

TO LYNCH NEGRO FOR BRUTAL MURDER AND FOUL ASSAULT

(Special from United Press.)

Durham, N. C., Dec. 20.—Sheriff S. M. Weather, after a day of searching, is rushing to this city with Nathan Montague, a negro murderer, closely pursued by a posse of incensed farmers who are seeking the negro to lynch him. His crime was one of the most revolting in the history of the State. Last night he broke into the home of a negro, a farmer, living some distance from this city. He murdered Sanders and his two-year-old grandchild. Then he assaulted Miss Sanders, the 20-year-old daughter of his victim, and afterward cut her throat with a jackknife.

Montague fired the house in an effort to hide his crime. A farmhand who escaped, gave the alarm and the sheriff overpowered and arrested the negro. He started for this city with a mob of enraged farmers in hot pursuit. The sheriff, his deputies and his men are trying to make this city by a roundabout way.

COMMISSION RULES ON VALID FREIGHT RATES

Washington, Dec. 20.—Railroad freight on goods for export and import are subject to the provisions of the "long and short haul clause," of the railroad law enacted at the last session of Congress, according to a ruling issued today by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The commission held that the act forbids carriers to charge more for the transportation of a like kind of export or import for a shorter than for a longer haul, over the same line in the same direction, without authority from the commission. The commission ruled that the validity of the rate under the clause should be determined by comparison of one export rate with another export rate, or an import rate with another import rate.
